

WANTS COLLEGE PLAY AGAIN

Missourian Advertiser Would, Have "Hundred Dollar Bill" Reproduced.

We understand that the management lost money on the recent production of "Hundred Dollar Bill." It is unfortunate that those who spent so many weary weeks of work and who gave to Columbia such a splendid entertainment as "Hundred Dollar Bill" should lose money. We understand that the business end of the production was managed with a view to giving four performances, two last week and two on Friday and Saturday of next week.

One more performance, however, will enable the club to make a slight profit. The logical time to give this performance is on Friday or Saturday night of next week. At that time many visitors will be in town. These visitors would certainly be agreeably surprised at so entertaining and artistic a production as the Quadrangle Club's recent revival of "Hundred Dollar Bill." They would go away with a pleasant remembrance of Columbia and the University. The advertising advantages of the play given on High School Day would be of great advantage to the University and to the town. Bubbling over with the spirit of the campus, typically college, full of hearty, wholesome laughs, "Hundred Dollar Bill" would be ideal entertainment for the High School Day visitors. To reproduce the play on that date would require but little work from the people partaking in it; yet the additional performance would save those people who have worked for many weeks on the production from loss, and it would be a splendid advertisement for the school and for Columbia.

HUNDRED DOLLAR BILL NO MORE

Musical Comedy Will Not Be Produced Again Unless During Stunt Week.

W. W. Campbell, manager of the Quadrangle Club, is trying to arrange for another performance of "The Hundred Dollar Bill," the musical comedy which that club produced last Friday night, Saturday afternoon and Saturday night. The matter of producing the play Friday night before High School Day was considered but the committee on student activities would not give permission for it to be given that night.

Stunt Week has been suggested as a possible time for another production of the play, but Mr. Campbell said this morning as far as he knew now it would not be produced again. The income from the three performances last week was not sufficient to meet the cost of production. The club lost about $200 on it. The cost of producing it Stunt Week will be heavy, as the lights and stage fixtures which were used in the last week's performances will be returned before that time and will have to be rented again.

BREAK UP WAGON IN RUNAWAY

Tandy Lumber Co. Horses Get Excited and Leave Building.

A first class runaway in which the horses involved ran out of a door of the Tandy Lumber Company on Tenth street and came in another door, took place about 3 o'clock this afternoon.

The tongue of the wagon to which the horses were hitched struck a telephone pole just south of the building. A good slice of the pole was stripped off and the tongue snapped in two.

The horses then turned down the alley along the south side of the building. The front wheels of the wagon turned up on end. By the time the whole equipage had gotten to the end of the alley at Ninth street, one front wheel was off and spokes and pieces of the wagon were strewn over the pavement.

Running was hard with a three-wheeled wagon and the horses were caught and taken back to their starting place. No one was on the wagon at the time.

SENIOR AGS SOW "TAME" OATS

Two Students Sent to Oversee Work on Experiment Fields.

J. T. Thurman, a senior in the College of Agriculture of the University, returned yesterday from Wentzville, Mo., where he has been overseeing the sowing of oats on the St. Charles County experiment field. He will go to Vandalia tomorrow to superintend the sowing of oats on the drainage experiment field.

C. A. Helm, also a senior in the College of Agriculture, superintended the sowing of oats on the soil experiment field at Bowling Green.

Eat Here and save time and money. Your time is valuable—then why should you allow your boarding house to be master of that value.

At your boarding house you pay for your meals whether you eat them or not.

Here, you eat only when you so desire and when it is most convenient. And the money you pay is for value received—when you don't eat you don't pay.

Students do all the work.

MODERN WRITING IS CHEAPENED

Dr. F. M. Tisdell Says Democracy Has Commercialized Literature.

That the movement toward democracy has in many ways cheapened literature, made it a money-making profession and crowded the market with light writings, was pointed out by Dr. F. M. Tisdell in a lecture at University Assembly this morning on "The Relation of English Literature to Modern Life."

"The literature of relaxation has replaced the literature of imagination with a large class," said Doctor Tisdell. "This is especially evident in the Middle West and among the male population. However, there are signs of a change coming, of a reaction from the present narrow industrialism. This is seen in the cry of the people for leisure as well as wages, and in the present progressive movements after higher ideals. This gives an opportunity for a new literature, which many writers are taking advantage of."

"However, we should not concern ourselves as much with the effect of democracy on literature as of literature on democracy. One great defect of our educational processes is that we try to bring learning to the level of the masses rather than the masses to the level of learning. We sometimes forget what is the true function of a college of arts."

Speaking of the relation of the development of science to literature, Doctor Tisdell cited Tennyson as an example of a literary man who accepted the new science without giving up his faith. Tennyson had a tremendous influence on his age and this spiritual attitude he took, Doctor Tisdell said, left the way open for the new ideas which are springing up now.

"We find these ideas being expressed by some of our most modern thinkers, among them the Rev. Hugh Black," he said. "The tendency to make more of our institutions, to seek for a larger view than physical science gives us, to find the unity which shall embrace all life and to escape from the too rigid bonds of intellectualism are tendencies which had their beginning in Tennyson."

Cyko Paper....

Cyko paper has latitude. That is why it is best for the amateur. If you expose a print 15 seconds and it should be printed 20 seconds the picture will still be good. It will just take longer to develop.

TO DEDICATE TRAIL MARKERS

E. W. Stephens Will Take Part in Ceremonies, May 17.

E. W. Stephens of Columbia will take part in dedicating the thirty granite markers which have been installed along the Santa Fe Trail in Missouri. The main exercises will be held at Old Franklin May 17.

The ceremonies have been arranged by the D. A. R. through whose efforts an appropriation of $3,000 for the markers was obtained from the General Assembly. The Kansas City D. A. R. chapter will go over the trail conducting the dedication of the smaller monuments, and will arrive in Old Franklin in time for the main celebration.

The markers are of Missouri rose granite. Each is seven feet high and weighs a ton. They have been placed at historic places along the trail.

Mrs. John Van Brunt and Miss Elizabeth Butler Gentry of Kansas City are arranging the program. Governor Major, former Governor Herbert S. Hadley, Mrs. Donald McLean of New York, honorary president general of the D. A. R., and E. W. Stephens will deliver addresses.

Talk by a Kansas City Man.

An illustrated lecture entitled, "Giving the People a Good Environment," will be given Tuesday at University Assembly, by L. A. Halbert, superintendent of the Board of Public Welfare of Kansas City, Mo.

Any porch may be equipped with Aerolux Shades for from $3.00 to $12.00, depending on how large the porch is; a sum so small that the purchaser is repaid time and time again by the comfort obtained.

The Aerolux Shade must not be confused nor even compared with cheaply constructed, flimsy, bamboo porch screens which do not afford protection from the sun, for the Aerolux is something entirely different. Bamboo porch screens may cost but little, but on the other hand they can hardly be said to ever give satisfaction and they are the most expensive in the end.

AEROLUX PORCH SHADES are made in three grades and in a great variety of colors. They are displayed, sold and guaranteed satisfactory.
